

04 September 2018

To Whom It May Concern:

We request authorization to transmit on the requested VHF frequencies so that we can communicate among our mobile teams during multi-vehicle missions, including meteorological observing projects, radar development and testing, and other activities in support of NSF, NOAA, and other supported research and development activities. Our systems and antennas are tuned for these frequencies. We request "secondary" authorization and understand that we will cease transmissions when/if these cause or threaten to cause interference with any primary use.

Thank you.

Joshua Wurman

President, Center for Severe Weather Research