

CALL SIGN WI2XNS

Since the last application covering this station was approved, the Commission has certified Google to operate as a Spectrum Access System (SAS) administrator in the 3.5 GHz band. Timely grant of this renewal application will enable Google to continue its experimental testing, the results of which will inform the design and operation of Google's commercial SAS. Google notes that extensive propagation testing has been conducted under its existing experimental authorization, with no reports of interference to other authorized users.
